Shivoham... Can I use the Ucchishta Chandali Mantra for manifestation while doing VKG in one sitting? Or it should be done separately. I have been using Ucchishta Ganapati Mantra from Karma Shuddhi Sadhana, Vancha Kalpalatha Ganapati Mantra and Ucchishta Chandali Mantra during manifestation, before sleep and after wake up. Also is it okay to use a Sarva Vashankari Mudra during these manifestation session or Mudra should only be used during Chakra meditation or Sadhana only.

Yes you can use Ucchishta Ganapati, Ucchishta Chandali and VKG together as a manifestation process, as a divine power to add to your manifestation process. You are bringing the Lord Ganesha, Ucchishta Chandali it is you know, Shakti of Ganesha is Ucchishta Chandali. Consciousness of Ucchishta Chandali is the Ucchishta Ganesha. VKG is the adding the power of the Sri Vidya to a Ganesha Tattva and making it more powerful, means Brahmanda Shakti will be added to your manifestation. So you are doing it rightly, you can do it together and what you are doing is very important, before going to sleep and after wake up, because those are the very important time where you can communicate directly to the subconscious mind That is the window time where subconscious mind is ready to absorb all your visualization, all your Mantra Shakti, all your affirmation and you can manifest better than any other day. Okay, you are doing well and I don't suggest, don't use any Mudra. Mudra has a very special way of communication. Don't do the Mudras other than a Chakra Meditation. This you need to understand. Never do the Mudras during the Sarva Vashankari Mudra during the Mantra Japa, during the manifestation process. Don't do it, simply do the Mantra Japa, visualization, repeat in your mind, have a positive expectation, let go negative thoughts, belief, fears, thoughts, emotion, all that inner negative violence, surrender to Divine Mother and affirm the truth inner world creates, outside world. By the grace of Lalita Ambika, by the grace of Rajamatangi, by the grace of Thirumoolar, by the grace of Bhairava, I am going to manifest my goal or my desire.

Shivoham.
